Voters get more choice, and can vote their conscience

With RCV, voters don't need to worry about "spoilers," or feel forced to vote for the lesser of two evils.

Voters can simply rank candidates in order of preference. If their first choice doesn't win, their vote automatically counts for their next choice instead. This frees voters from worrying about how others will vote and which candidates are more or less likely to win.

More candidates can run without fear of playing spoiler, or of splitting the vote with like-minded opponents.
